Introducing

SHERLOCK SLEUT

HS FOR SOLUTION

Famous Detective Searches for School's Secret of Success

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 5, 1945 (HPA) Sherlock the Great, world renowned detective, arrived today in this city to investigate the success of Thomas Carr Howe High School, the city's newest high school.

As a background for Mr. Sherlock's studies, members of the HILLTOPPER staff gave him a short resume of the school's growth from 16 teachers, 38 courses, and 450 pupils to 68 teachers, 184 courses, and 1400 students.

This inventory of achievements included the basketball sectional championship in 1944; track sectional championships in 1941, 1942, and 1945; All-American ratings on 1942 and 1943 HILLTOPPERS; and admission of the school into the North Central Association in 1942. Students in the Art Department have won numerous awards in poster contests and in the Scholastic contests. High lighting the school year are such annual events as the fall and spring night dances, the Birthday Pageant in May, the Footlight Revelers' play, the senior play and activities, the Music Festival, the Hi-Y Sweetheart Dance, the appearance of the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra at assembly, and the semi-annual Pleasant Run Revue and operetta.

At a press conference this afternoon Mr. Sherlock stated that his search for the four clues that make up any school's success would take a year, and the solution to the "Mystery of the Four Clues" would be published in the

Clue No. 1

HOW did Sherlock begin his investigations? Going through the main doors, he made his way through the pushing mob of boys and girls toward the office. Here he met the administrative staff of Howe High School, Mrs. Joan Thompson, Miss Virginia Childers, Mrs. Ruth Reed, Mr. Thomas Stirling, and Mr. Clarence Clayton. Principal Charles M. Sharp held the visitors' book as Sherlock signed his famous name. Afterwards when Mr. Sherlock examined the office for possible clues, he saw the portrait of Thomas Carr Howe and learned that Dr. Howe had once been president of Butler University. Satisfied that the office withheld no more clues, Sherlock without a minute to spare (like every student) dashed off to class to cram his brain with knowledge and in between classes heard the latest gossip about the big events and the B. M. O. C.'s.

SCHOOL LIFE

Sherlock Searches Out

It didn't take a magnifying glass for Sherlock to detect the big events around Howe . . . all he had to do was follow the crowds.

discovered that the Democrats and Republicans don't have a thing on Howe when it comes to politics. The Federalist convention was a huge success under the leadership of Davy Holtzclaw. (Above Right) A new but very busy Activities Board was in session when Sherlock dropped into Mrs. Mildred Loew's office. Joe Foerderer, president, was explaining some new business to other council members, Eloy Stevens, the Big Events . . .

John Bruckman, Jack Alexander, Estel Barry, Janet Lewis, Hugh Moreillon, and Bob O'Neel. (Lower Left) Sherlock enjoyed Carl Spiess' piccolo solo along with the other singers of the operetta, Joe Eads, Fran McAree, Doug Gill, Suzi Foster, Pat Kennedy, and Joe Foerderer. (Lower Middle) On the night of October 12, Sherlock joined a huddle of other Howeites, Barbara Baldwin, Jim Hill, Janis Heithecker, Karl Stoneking, Doug

Gill, Suzi Foster, and Christina Gainey enjoying that "pause that refreshes," at the Brown and Gold Dance. (Lower Right) While listening to the Junior Town Meeting on the radio one Saturday night, Sherlock heard Joan Meininger, Peggy Millen, Jane Messing, and Fran McAree discuss the question "Is Indianapolis A Progressive City?" Frank Edwards of WIBC was moderator for the program.

... And Interviews

After attending all the big events at Howe, Sherlock met all the B. M. O. C.'s and B. W. O. C.'s around Howe's halls. (Above Left) First, Sherlock met Patty Sloo, Violet Queen, and her attendants, Janis Heithecker, Lois Ann Brenn, Mary Jane Hill, and LaVonne Mannfeld, who reigned at the annual May Pageant. (Above Middle) Brown Boy and Golden Girl candidates, Joan Crawford, Mary Lester, Jewel Dorsey, Lois Ann Brenn (elected), George Spradling, Bill Locklear, Ronnie Roach, and Tom Woerner (elected), met Mr. Sherlock at the fall dance. (Above Right) Mary Jordan (center), Hi-Y sweetheart, and the other candidates, Joan Dufour, Peggy Millen, Elizabeth Schmidt, and Patty Sloo, posed for Sherlock so he could give his vote of approval to the Hi-Y guys' choices.

All the B.M.O.C.'s

outstanding juniors on the basis of scholarship, service, and loyalty. (Below Right) For the first Indianapolis Invitational Relays held last spring, Jewel Dorsey reigned as Howe's track queen.

... He Investigates What

At this time Sherlock jumped from politics to polygons, and with books under his arm he began to investigate the classes to uncover any of the clues concerning the most important part of our life at Howe—"book learning." Mr. Sherlock wasn't partial to the fair sex, but his first stop was at Room 34 where Howe's sweet maidens were busy designing and making clothing.

After learning all about patterns and stitches and the value of textiles, Sherlock made his way upstairs to the chemistry lab to find experiments and studies about the various elements taking place. After the students in first year chemistry learned the properties of elements and compounds, they made tests to determine unknown substances.

The wooden thing with the white chalk in the above picture baffled Sherlock, but Beverly Dickerson explained to him that it was a skirt marker. Supervised by Miss Lois Coy, Rosemary Buenting marked the hem for Elouise Aichele's skirt. Miss Coy told Sherlock that besides clothing, home making and social practice were also offered in connection with the Home Economics Department.

Mr. Floyd Jefferies explained to Sherlock that Joan Meininger and Alan Gise, Chemistry I students, were starting an experiment to determine the composition of water. In Chemistry III, offered for the first time last fall, the students dealt with qualitative analysis and each pupil undertook a separate project in some field of advanced chemistry.

Goes On in Class Rooms

"But chemistry is only one-third of the Science Department," pointed out Mrs. Bette Davis, biology teacher, so Sherlock made his way to the two biology rooms. Browsing around among the flora and fauna, Mr. Sherlock found students identifying insect collections, making plant identifications, studying heredity by crossing fruit flies, and cultivating plants which had been grown from seed.

Being a "green thumb" himself, Sherlock joined Judith Barnes, Mrs. Davis, Charles Jones, and Mrs. Barbara Charles in the greenhouse. Those plants, when they had reached the necessary size, were given to students to transplant into gardens. Sherlock also joined a field trip which the students took in connection with their insect collections last fall.

Even Sherlock was baffled when he stepped into the gym and saw that little piece of apparatus with all the dials. The boys, in between testing and adjusting, explained to Sherlock that it was a public address system, given to Howe many years ago by the Men's 400 Club, fathers' organization. The boys were putting it in order for use in an assembly program.

While James Sommerville worked with the dials, Mr. Richard Hammond, Dick Bakemeier, and Cyrus McNutt explained to Sherlock the mysteries of the P. A. system. Mr. Hammond, physics teacher, told Sherlock that some knowledge of radio and an interest in the subject encouraged these boys to help with the public address system. Repair and maintenance work was also done by these boys.

Meets Howe's Hard

(Above) From the gym Mr. Sherlock went to Room 220 where Mr. Seward Craig, head of the English Department, was talking with the teachers in his department. By listening closely to roll call, Sherlock found out the "pupils" for this session were (left to right) Mrs. Betty Baker, Miss Hildegard Kuhar, Mrs. Ruth Marie Griggs, Miss Alice Hankins, Mr. Darrell Gooch, Mrs. Mary Ann Elliott, Miss Ellen O'Drain, Miss Elizabeth Smith, Miss Marthana McWhir, Miss Marjorie Schoch, and Mrs. Margaret Butz. Mr. Craig told Sherlock that besides regular English courses, Howe also offers journalism, speech, and dramatics.

(Lower Left) "A bookworm's paradise," stated Sherlock as he stepped into Howe's fully equipped library. Janet Lewis and Mrs. Margaret Butz showed Mr. Sherlock some of the newest additions to the collection, and Joy Wilson and Miss Marjorie Schoch explained to him the uses of the card catalog where the 4,000 books were listed.

(Lower Right) Sherlock, (being slightly baffled) decided he might need a new job when his investigations were over, so he promptly talked with Mrs. Margaret Rogofsky, Mr. Wade Fuller, and Mrs. Mildred Loew, Howe's employment advisors.

Working Teachers . . .

(Upper Left) "If you need your ankle taped, your temperature taken, or if it's just a good old cough drop you need, see Miss Celia Smith, the school nurse" is the Howe golden rule. Journeying to Room 121, Sherlock found Miss Smith and two home nursing students, Betty Dallas (left) and Barbara Ingersoll inspecting a complete model collection of equipment for a sickroom.

(Upper Right) Sherlock found out that the girls who take foods not only learn how to cook, but how to set and to serve the table. He watched while Mary Bragg (left) and Sue Sweeney served lunch to Mrs. Ruth Shepard, Miss Helen Allen, Suzanne Shortridge, and Judy Miller.

(Below) Even though Sherlock has traveled extensively and is a well-educated man, he learned a great deal from the guiding lights in the Social Studies Department. By creeping in on another teachers' meeting, he was able to meet (left to right) Mr. Lewis Gilfoy, head of the department, Mr. Wade Fuller, Mr. Russell Curtis, Miss Dorothea Kirk, Mr. Hartwell Kayler, Mrs. Mary Diaz, and Mrs. Hattie Winslow. After the meeting Mr. Gilfoy told Sherlock about the many courses offered at Howe in his department. These include social studies, world history, U. S. history, American government, sociology, Latin-American history, and psychology.

And Surveys Modern

(Above) Sherlock wasn't quite sure of the product of 3 times 2; so Miss Anna Suter showed him how to find the answer on the slide rule. Paul Powell and LaVonne Mannfeld took advantage of the lesson, while Miss Mary McCord watched. Miss Suter explained to Sherlock that the students in trigonometry used the slide rule a great deal.

(Below) While Sherlock looked over the many machines in the metal shop room, Mr. Dennis Wright, teacher, explained that tool making was the main project done by most of the boys enrolled in metal shop. Here Mr. Wright inspects the work done by Gene Lawrence and Jack LeMasters.

(Above) But before we can have advanced math, we must have a bit of the fundamentals such as algebra and plane geometry. Bill Schmadeke, sophomore, was copying an angle as Sherlock came into the room. Afterwards he met three of Howe's math teachers, Mr. Wilbur Chambers, Mrs. Lucy Henry, and Mrs. Rose Scoles.

(Below) Nearly all the office forms, dance tickets, play programs, and some of the publicity pamphlets used around school are printed by the boys enrolled in printing classes. Mr. E. A. Patterson, printing teacher, explained to Sherlock and to Frank Knox, Elmer Summit, and Clifford Melvin how the printing press is operated.

Teaching Methods

(Above) Thirty-three typewriters and thirty-three busy typists greeted Sherlock when he stepped into Room 223. Here he found Mr. Sherman Pittenger and Mr. M. D. Williams helping Peggy Millen with the ditto machine. Besides typing instruction, shorthand, business law, office practice, junior business, bookkeeping, filing, and commercial geography are also offered in this department.

(Below) Sherlock joined Mr. Wathen Leasor in supervising John Carter, Maynard King, and Carol Pritchett who were each doing part of the blueprinting process. Mr. Leasor told Sherlock that mechanical, architectural, aircraft, and machine drawing are all offered to Howe students.

(Above) Miss Hildegard Kuhar, Miss Narcie Pollitt, Miss Thelma Cooley, and Miss Mary Elizabeth Thumma, foreign language teachers, tried to encourage Sherlock to take either Latin or Spanish or to attend the French Club during his stay at Howe. Unfortunately, however, he was too busy tracing clues to start translating.

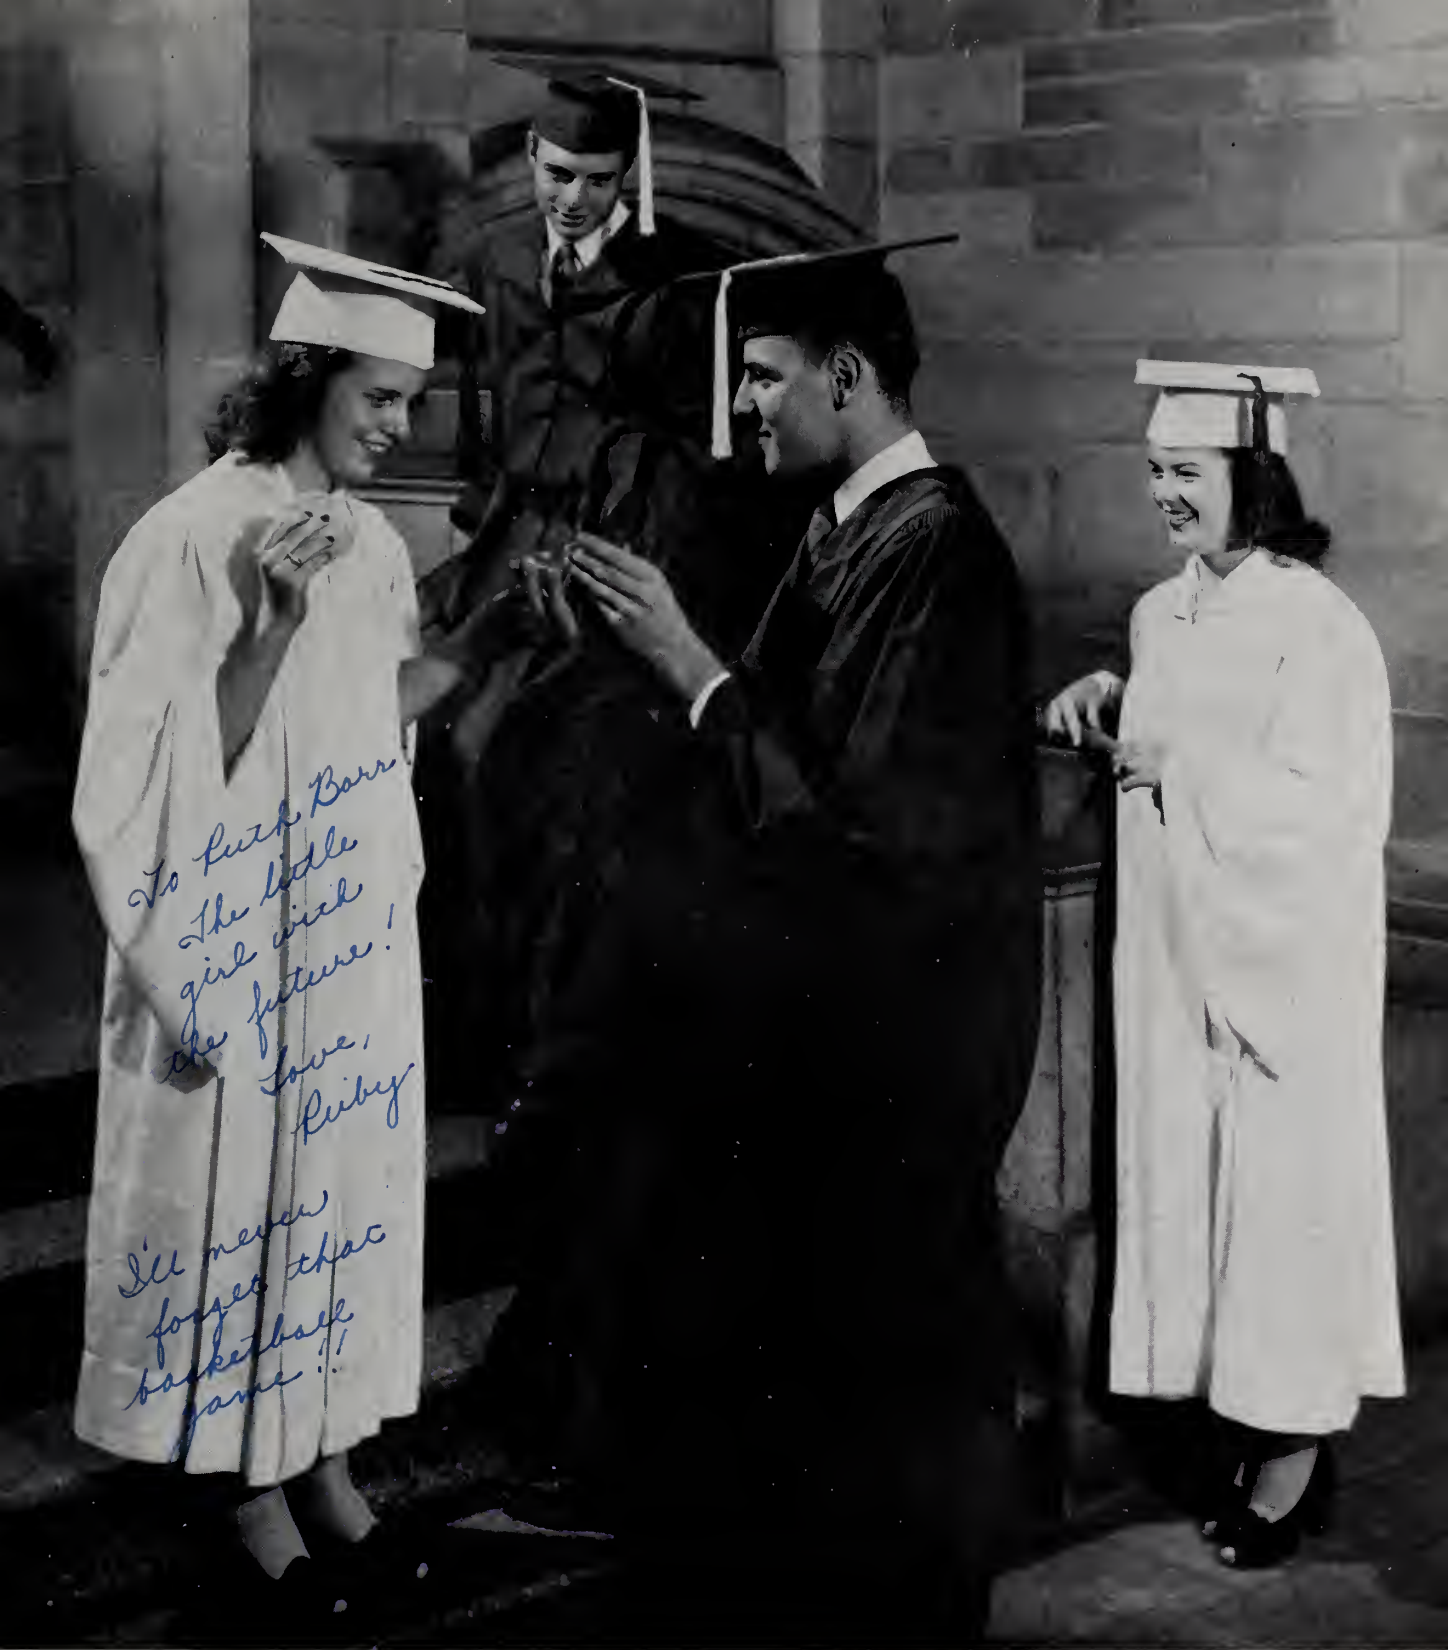

(Below) When Sherlock walked into the art room Joann Bade was explaining the use of the air brush to LaVina Booram, under the supervision of art teachers, Miss Janet Keller and Mrs. Loreen DeWaard. Commercial art, fashions, jewelry, leather craft, and arts and crafts are taught in addition to Art I-VIII.

Clue No. 2

ON SHERLOCK went! After investigating all the classrooms and big events, Sherlock started on his interviews with all the students at Howe. Our Senior Class officers gave Sherlock the low-down on all the Janes and Joes on this campus. But first Sherlock had to take a peek in the mirror that Carl Edwards, class president, was holding to see what Ruby King, vice-president, had found so interesting. Elizabeth Schmidt, secretary, informed Mr. Sherlock that he would have to investigate the senior play, "Best Foot Forward," and Bob O'Neel, treasurer, explained about the various senior committees and their work. Sherlock learned that the senior year is the best with plenty of work and play, so no senior is a dull boy. And, of course, he discovered the underclassmen are on the go every minute of the time. Sherlock's hand was in a sling by the time he had shaken hands with all the students.

... Sherlock Personally Attends

There was so much senior business that Sherlock didn't see how it would ever be all finished by June, so the officers introduced him to the Senior Counselors and Committees. (Top Left to Right) Senior Counselors: (standing) Miss Marthana McWhir, Mr. Darrell Gooch, Mrs. Mary Diaz, Mr. Russell Curtis; (seated) Mrs. Betty Baker, Miss Betty L. Williams, Miss Anna K. Suter,

... And Investigates "Best Foot

Anxious to be in on the excitement of the Senior Play, "Best Foot Forward," Sherlock stayed back stage and helped out as prompter. This way he got to meet the cast first-hand. (Above Left) Jane Messing and Ken Kleinschmidt had a little spat when she found out that Ken (Bud Hooper) had brought another girl to the prom. (Above Middle) Dave Schornstein, Joe Eads, and Clifford

Wagoner almost caught Chuck Jones coming in the window, a procedure which took place fairly often during the three acts. (Above Right) Elizabeth Schmidt who played the lead part, Gale Joy, made sure that Jerry Heater and Stanley Walter left by the window exit instead of the door. Sonny Knight helped with the "exit."

Forward" from Back Stage . . .

(Below Left) Dave Schornstein as Doc Reeber ineffectively resisted Liz's final appeal as Leon Horton took the picture as a bit of "publicity blackmail." Lewie Wood and Sonny Knight helped out. (Below Middle) Josephine Barrett, Chuck Jones, Ken Kleinschmidt, Jo Justice, Lewis Wood, and Jane Messing all tried to hide when someone yelled that Doc Reeber was coming, and they should have been at the dance. (Below Right) Before the dance, Sherlock accidentally came into the "girls' boudoir" and found Patty Sloo, Joan Meininger, Jo Barrett, LaVonne Mannfeld, Jane Messing, and Jo Justice getting ready for the dance. Satisfied that the Senior Play was a huge success, Sherlock rambled on.

Sherlock Goes "Behind the Scenes"...

Sherlock had to investigate those "behind the scene" places to find any extra clues to solve his mystery. (Upper Left) Mrs. Arla Hunt, cafeteria supervisor, discussed cashiers' problems with Mary Virginia Rider and Maellen Wright. (Upper Right) Working on books in the library workshop Sherlock found Elizabeth Morello, Betty Perkinson, and Ellen Ford. (Center) Sherlock's face got rather red when he discovered the make-up secrets of Howe's females. Mrs. Mary Wells, matron, watched the girls' delicate (?) work. (Lower Left) When Sherlock wanted tickets for the senior play, he journeyed down to the bookstore where Mrs. Christiana Genrich was already helping a few students. (Lower Right) Robert and Richard Bakemeier prepared to take a picture for Howe publications.

Greets Howe's Newcomers . . .

Helping Howe to welcome newcomers arriving for the second semester, Sherlock met ex-servicemen who were added to our faculty. (Upper Left) Mr. Kenneth Smartz, social studies, and Mr. Francis Howard, art; (Lower Left) Mr. Elwood Yeager, English and physical education, and Mr. John Shepard, music; (Upper Right) Mr. William Smith and Mr. Merle Wimmer, biology. Other new faces were the mid-year freshmen: (Back Row) Murry Hoover, Bill Cowell,

George Ferling, James Horton, Tom Carmack, Dick Ettinger, Albert Hack. (Third Row) Beverly Crossley, Norman Fuller, Lester Cunningham, Marilyn Davis, Doris Goodwin, Charlotte Hymer. WHAT can this be but athletics?? Dribble, dribble, swish 1-2-3 hikel! Fore! a hole in one!, rah—Brown and Gold, win! All this and more greeted Sherlock as he started his investigations of the sports world at T. C. H. H. S. When he attended a Howe football game, Mr. Sherlock soon learned that Howe students always enthusiastically back their athletic teams. Unfortunately, he was sitting next to T. Woerner and missed getting in the picture. Football, basketball, golf, track—Sherlock observed them all and cheered himself hoarse. Not to be outdone, the G. A. A. gals put on an exhibition of girls' sports for Sherlock and showed him what they have to do to earn their letters. (Confidentially, by the end of the season, Sherlock had almost decided to give up detecting and become an athlete, but a look in the mirror convinced him that he didn't have the build for it.)

Gridders Win Four Encounters

Howe's newest athletic endeavor, football, started its second full season this year. The squad was a young one, lacking in experience, for Coach Samuel T. Kelley had but six returning lettermen around which to build his squad. Nevertheless, the team turned in an impressive record of four wins, four defeats, and one tie against some of the county's best grid teams.

In the second encounter of the season, after running over a ragged Pike Township team in the opener, the Hornets put up a game fight only to go down in defeat to Manual's strong Redskins. The game told of Howe's inexperience, and the several touchdown drives were nullified by fumbles, bad passes, and penalties. The gridders surprised the Redskins with a fine aerial attack and effective end runs by Joe Weaver, Jim Hill, and George Spradling.

Howe went on to win its second encounter in three starts by downing a determined Westfield squad. Then came a 54-0 rout over Ben Davis. This afternoon saw a wide open offensive display by the Hornet gridders. Featured in the free scoring tilt were touchdowns by Doug Gill and Joe Weaver, who each scored two, and the accurate place-kicking from the toe of Leroy Hofmann, who converted six of eight extra point attempts.

One of the best games of the local grid season was played Friday night, October 19, at Southport's Roosevelt Stadium. The Hornets made their first bid to score late in the first quarter only to fumble on the Cardinals' four-yard line. In the second quarter Southport advanced twice into Howe territory, but the Red and White was stopped by a pass interception and a stiff Hornet forward wall.

The score at half time stood 0-0. Southport struck swiftly at the outset of the third period to score the first touchdown of the ball game. The Hornets lashed back with two quick tallies of their own. Jim Hill, stellar halfback, carried the ball on two successive plays, first to the Cardinal three after a sixty-three yard run, and then over on a line plunge. The try for the extra point failed. On the succeeding kick-off Maynard King recovered a Southport fumble on Howe's thirty and in six plays the Howeites were once more on the Southport thirty-five, and Joe Weaver then carried the ball over on an end sweep, putting the Brown and Gold ahead, 12-7. Southport recovered a fumble on the Howe four-yard line late in the fourth quarter and in two plays scored the deciding touchdown. The next week Howe fell to a strong Warren Central squad and then the following week fought to a 7-7 tie with Sacred Heart.

Howe won from the Silent Hoosiers before losing the last game of the season to an aggregation from Broad Ripple.

Hill and Weaver, the halfbacks of the Hornet squad, were the leading scorers. Hill led with a total of 37 points, followed by Weaver with 30. Leroy Hofmann was third, as he garnered 13 points from his very accurate place-kicking after touchdowns. Maynard King was elected captain and Dave Schornstein was awarded the Most Valuable Player Award.

Reserves and Frosh Have Good Season

After bowing in their opener, the Howe reserve squad copped three encounters in a row, before succumbing in their final game. The Hornets were nosed out 7-6 in their season opener by Warren Central on September 28. Coach Tom Stirling's aggregation then hit its stride, shutting out Broad Ripple 12-0 and Manual 15-13 on successive Thursdays. The reserve team fought its way to a well-earned 13-6 victory over Southport's Cardinals, October 18, and concluded its schedule on November 1 when it fell 7-6 before Washington's team.

Howe's freshmen gridders, coached by Mr. Roscoe Pierson and Mr. E. Franklin Fisher, broke even in their six game card. The frosh thumped Warren Central in their initial pigskin battle, but went down in defeat on the short end of a 19-6 score at the hands of the Broad Ripple Rockets. The Hornets grabbed a 26-0 verdict from Manual and then dropped a contest to Southport by a similar margin. Scoring their third straight shutout, the frosh blanked Warren Central again to the tune of 18-0 for the Howeites' final victory of the season. Washington edged past the Hornets 12-7 in their grid finale.

Hornets Have Successful Season of Hoosier Hoopla

This year's edition of the Hornet Varsity was one of the best in the school's brief history. Playing one of the toughest schedules, including two tournaments, the Howe hardwood squad won 15 out of 20 regularly scheduled contests for a .750 percentage mark.

In the opening game of the season, the Howeites bowed to a strong Tech squad, 31-21. The next three games were played without the services of Carl Edwards, senior forward, but the Hornets managed to win easily from Warren Central, Broad Ripple, and Washington before embarking on a trip to Franklin which saw them bow to the Grizzley Bears, 27-21. On December 15 the cagers ran over a county rival, Ben Davis, and before adjourning for the holidays they bested Greenfield's Tigers, 47-27, at the Greenfield gym.

Howe sponsored its second annual Holiday Four-Way Tournament, December 31, and for the second time the Hornet hardwood squad closed out the year right by winning their own tournament. Four teams competed: Howe, Franklin, Tech, and Columbus. The latter two at the time were considered as among the state's top teams.

In the afternoon games of the tourney Tech tripped a favorite Columbus outfit, 38-36, and Howe avenged an earlier defeat at the hands of Franklin by humbling them, 29-24, thus earning the right to meet Tech in the finals that night.

Columbus won the consolation game and in the finale the Hornets avenged their early season defeat at the hands of Tech by beating the Greenclads, 33-31. It was a hard-fought contest with the lead changing hands many times in the last quarter of the game, but the final gun found the Howeites still ahead by the slim margin of two points.

On January 12, the Hornets copped the Shortridge Invitational Tourney, and added another trophy to their season's accomplishments. Broad Ripple beat Shortridge, the host team, in the first afternoon game, while the Brown and Gold had to nose out a determined Lawrence Central squad. In the finals Howe beat Broad Ripple for the second time that season to the tune of 37-26.

The Howe cagers went on to win from Lawrence Central and Shortridge before having a ten game winning streak broken by an aggressive Bloomington quintet.

Howe lost to Cathedral and Garfield of Terre Haute before winning the last two games of the season from Manual and a strong Shelbyville five.

In the local sectional tourney Howe for the first time in the last few years drew the tough upper bracket. In their first sectional appearance the Hornets met Warren Central's Warriors and after leading all the way came close to losing the game as Warren put on a game rally. The Brown and Gold came through 32-30. Their next opponet was Tech, and here the Howe squad bowed out of the tourney.

Reserves Not So Far Behind

Howe's reserve squad ended the season close on the heels of the varsity team, winning 11 out of 16 contests. The reserve cagers lost their opening encounter to Tech by the score of 25-12, and then romped over Broad Ripple 22-14.

Coach Ray Bowman's charges bowed to Washington next in a close contest 20-19. On December 8 they beat the Warren Central Warriors 25-12, but lost the following Friday night to a strong, unbeaten Franklin quintet. On December 15, they romped over Ben Davis 26-18 and continued their winning way by beating Greenfield 23-18. Southport out-pointed them on January 4 in another close one which ended 26-25. Then the reserves started a six-game winning streak in which they topped Decatur Central, Shortridge, Lawrence Central, Bloomington, Cathedral, Garfield of Terre Haute, before bowing to Manual 21-19. In the last game of the season the reserve cagers defeated Shelbyville 30-27.

Arlen Risley topped the point-getters with 108 points followed closely by Jim Stutz, 85; Irving Thomas, 47; and Bill Terrell, 39. Risley, Stutz, and Thomas, all sophomores from last year's city championship freshmen squad, will be around next year to help our Hornet varsity.

Frosh Win Nine Games

Howe's frosh ended this last season with a won and lost record of 9 and 7. At the beginning the team was very inexperienced, but when the curtain came down at the season's end, they were found to be a vastly improved squad. Some proof of this can be seen in the comparison of some of the team's victories over teams which had previously defeated them. Howe's first encounter with Manual ended in a 20-17 defeat. The second time the Hornets came out on top, 40-27. Cathedral topped our frosh 15-7 but later Howe avenged this with a 17-15 defeat. In the first attempt with Washington, the team conquered the Continentals 24-9. They defeated Tech in both their games with the Greenclads.

Of the 84 boys out for freshman basketball at the beginning of the season only 15 survived. These were: Harry Stewart, Eugene Cowell, Don Denniston, Art Holman, Frank Knox, Robert Brown, Jack Alexander, James Baker, Robert Bohn, Dave Cook, Don Daugherty, Dick Ferguson, Alan Holman, and Joe Pirtle.

The frosh closed the season second to Broad Ripple in city series competition. The leading scorers were Don Denniston, 86; Harry Stewart, 79; Frank Knox, 58; and Eugene Cowell, 38. The defensive play of Robert Brown was very outstanding. Joe Pirtle, who was injured in football, joined the squad late in the season.

Coach Fisher's yearlings had a very good season and many frosh are ready to move up to next year's reserve squad.

Track . . .

Hornets Win 1945 Sectional Crown

Howe's thinlies finished the 1945 track season in fine style by copping the sectional track meet at the Washington oval and qualified seven individuals and a half-mile relay team for the state meet. In addition they won four of eight regularly scheduled dual meets, placed fourth in the city track meet, and secured a fifth in the Indianapolis Relays.

This edition of Howe track teams was a particularly well-balanced one, being exceptionally strong in the field events and the middle distance races. Leading the team in points was Bud Reed, who garnered the big total of $67\frac{1}{4}$ points. Other leading point-getters were Roland Swingley, Dave DeWitte, and Carl Lomatch, stellar dashman, who left school early in the season to enroll at Purdue. His shoes were ably filled by Don Hyfield, frosh dashman, who was outstanding in varsity competition.

The afternoon of the sectional saw three Howe records fall by the wayside. Dave DeWitte broke the mile standard with a 4:44.5 performance. Roland Swingley upped the broad jump mark with a leap of $20' 6\frac{1}{4}"$. The climax of the afternoon came when the half-mile relay team composed of Dick Toothman, Charles Irwin, Don Hyfield, and Jack Nugent raced the distance in 1:37.2 to clinch the sectional crown. Besides the above named, Norman Dixon, Bob O'Neel, Bud Reed, and Harry Branson went to the state meet carrying Howe's Brown and Gold. Branson and Reed were the only Hornets to garner points in the state meet with each of them collecting $\frac{1}{5}$ of a point in the high jump.

Harriers Finish Regular Season Undefeated

Met with the challenge of a last year's undefeated cross country team, Coach Ray Bowman's Hornet harriers ably overcame the challenge and added a few new records to the Athletic Department's books. Blessed with the return of two major letter winners, Dave DeWitte and George Harris, and a veteran squad, the spikesters completed an undefeated regularly scheduled season, and placed second in the City Invitational Meet in grand style. The Hornet's only defeat came in a triangular meet with Anderson and Warren Central. The Anderson Indians turned in a low score of 17 to win top honors; Howe qualified for second berth with 44 points, and Warren Central trailed the pack with 57.

Howe played host for the City Invitational Meet held November 13. Dave DeWitte, Howe's stellar track and cross country star, carried off top honors in the meet by besting his nearest rival, Bill Benz of Tech, by approximately 150 yards. This record-breaking runner knocked down Howe's previous course record of 9:56, set by Bill Benz of Tech in the Tech-Howe meet this fall, to the low time of 9:49.6, chopping 6.4 seconds off the previous time. Not satisfied with one new record up his sleeve, DeWitte also paced a new city meet record to topple the previous city meet record of 10:12.6 set by Paul Stayonovich of Manual in 1943. However, the Tech squad was too strong for the Howe aggregation and Tech retained the city crown with 28 points as Howe settled for runner-up with 60 points. The other scoring was as follows: Manual, 63; Broad Ripple, 73; Washington, 134; Shortridge, 140; and Crispus Attucks, 195.

The season opened with the Hornet's easy victory of 15 to 50 over Lawrence Central. Manual fell next to the tune of 23 to 32 and Beech Grove, Broad Ripple, Shortridge, Washington, and Warren Central came next on the list of the conquered. The Howe team closed the regular season with a 23-32 victory over Tech.

Divot Diggers Complete Sixth Season

Coach Fred Lemley's linksmen completed a successful regular scheduled season and placed third in the annual fall City-County Invitational Meet held on the Indian Lake course, September 17. In closing the 1945 season the swingsters failed to maintain the coveted title they had copped for three successive years as Tech moved easily into first place with a very low score of 312.

Lawrence Central placed second with 349, Howe came close with 353, Shortridge did well with 378, and Broad Ripple tailed behind with 387. Ted Skillman led the Hornet pack with a card of 84, Paul Wier marked up 86, Gerald Williams placed third with 91, and Bob Erbrich scored 92.

Howe played host for the Spring Invitational Tourney held on May 21 on the Pleasant Run course. Again bested by a strong Tech team with a score of 319, Howe captured second honors with 340 points. Third place was filled by Lawrence with 356 points, and Shortridge with 363, Broad Ripple with 366, and Cathedral with 399 followed. Ed Borden scored low on the Howe quartet with an 83. Bob Rochford marked up an 87 and Ronnie Roach and Lionel Chandler tied for third place with 89 strokes.

A triangular meet on April 20 with Howe, Lawrence, and Shortridge playing opened the 1945 season. Howe was edged out of first place by Lawrence but managed to triumph over Shortridge to place second. The next scene of action took place on April 23 on the South Grove course in which Howe matched strokes with Tech, Shortridge, and Cathedral. Never able to edge past Tech in the entire year, Howe again qualified for second honors. The scoring was as follows: Tech, 317; Howe, 350; Shortridge 357; and Cathedral, 373. In the last scene of action on the Sarah Shank course, May 21, Howe was bypassed by both Tech and Shortridge with scores of 310, 344, and 348 respectively.

'Round the Year With Intramural Sports

Under the able direction of Mr. Samuel T. Kelley and Mr. Ray W. Bowman, intramural sports have grown greatly during the past few years at Howe. The biggest intramural event of each year is the spring track meet. Held on June 5 last year, any boy was eligible who had not participated in any freshman or varsity track meets in the year. Each physical education period could enter two boys in each of the thirteen events, and any boy could participate in three events. Qualification tests were held previous to the meet, and ribbons were presented to each winner placing in the first three places. The following boys came out on top in the track events: Joe Weaver, Marion Knight, Gene McClarney, Jack Alexander, John Passen, Finley Isler, Don Rafferty, Horalld Reed, and Rex Cline.

Physical fitness was stressed in all boys' gym classes. A rigid program including conditioning exercises, rope climbing, and chinning on the bar was given to each boy.

Basketball or football rounded out each gym period. Much enthusiasm was created between squads in the gym classes. Two squads were far superior, both in the freshman and upper classes in both basketball and football. They were as follows: Upper classmen—Kenneth Kleinschmidt, David Lawson, James Lohman, Fran McAree, David McMahan, and Charles Miller. Freshmen—Duane Wise, David Stein, Harry Stewart, Scott Stockton, Herbert Teague, Leo Terry, Farris Turk, Harry Ware, Richard Wisheart, and Warren Wright.

Jarzans A La Femme?

"Our G.A.A. at Howe is hard to beat, In all our games we never show defeat." Ambling through the boys' gym recently Sherlock heard the new G.A.A. song. Deducing that it was Tuesday night and time for the gals on the east side to gather round for girls sports he decided to investigate. He found that the spotlight in one corner rested on the parallel bars and side horse where some of the fairer sex accomplished unbelievable loop-the-loops while in another corner he found those who felt less active but skillful, playing ping-pong.

Quickly drawing his conclusions the master detective decided girls' sports were really on the beam at Howe and left with us some advice for the male population of Howe. We quote, "Watch out, guys, you may be dating a 'lady Atlas'." Is a word to the wise sufficient?

Frances Swengel

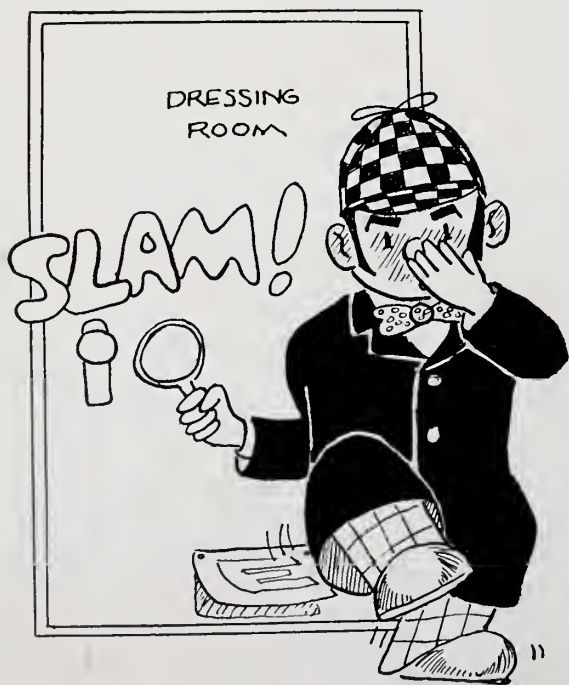

Clue No. 4

"*E*veryone joins a club or two," someone informed Sherlock.

So, because he's a systematic, conscientious man, Sherlock tried them all, one by one. He was even a member of the choir (pictured on the opposite page) for a few weeks. Mr. Sherlock "habla espolol"ed with the Spaniards in the Spanish Club and went to trial with the Latins. He spent hours in the science labs investigating all those unknowns and persuaded someone to teach him about the movie projector. He helped write the constitution of the new Junior Historical Club and tried out for a part in "Stage Door," Footlight Revelers' spring production.

At the end of his investigations of the organizations, he traveled those curving stairs to the top of the Tower and discussed the mystery with the members of the publications staffs.

Sherlock Turns Musical . . .

In answer to Sherlock's inquiries as to where the music was coming from, he was taken to the music room, half-hidden behind the boy's gym. Here he found the Choir under the direction of Mr. Frank S. Watkins, vocal instructor, rehearsing for "A Waltz Dream," this year's three act operetta. When rehearsals were over, Mr. Watkins told Sherlock that these 65 selected boys and girls were carrying out traditions set by seven previous choirs by presenting operettas, annual Music Festivals and Christmas assemblies.

During the eighth period, masters of the strings tromped into the practice room to rehearse their part in the annual American Legion Memorial Service. Soon the room was filled with the noise of tuning violins, cellos and bases. The Orchestra director, Mr. John W. Shepard, who took over the leadership from Mr. Robert H. Burford in January, invited Sherlock to witness this rehearsal. Later Sherlock found that Mr. Shepard directed the Orchestra in successful performances at Commencement, Vespers, and the annual Music Festival.

Sherlock donned one of the smart brown and gold uniforms that he found hanging in the locker room in order to spy upon the band. When he hit an incorrect note, Mr. Robert H. Burford, band director, discovered his presence. Upon finding that Sherlock was there to gather news on the band's success, Mr. Burford told him of the organization's outstanding performances at assemblies, the annual Music Festival, and the Navy Day parade. The maestro then introduced him to the major, Dick Sharkey, and the majoriettes, Pat Etheridge, Martha Mitchell, Nancy Arford, Barbara May, and Joan Perkinson, who led the band in its marching formations.

Mr. Burford went on to explain to Sherlock that when a vacancy occurred, band members were chosen from the B band because they measured up to the standards of the Music Department. These include superior music ability, a personality to match that of the group, and willingness to promote the good name of the organization.

At the end of the day, in the music room, Sherlock met the eight boys and girls who made up the Octets, and their accompanist, Joan Bayly. They sang their favorite songs, "In My Solitude" and "Ole Man River," for him. Mr. Watkins, their director, told Sherlock that these groups, chosen from the Choir, often combined to compose the ensemble when performing for churches, Parent-Teacher and lodge meetings, and other outside organizations.

Sherlock, now quite familiar with the location of the Music Department, wandered back one Monday to see the Crescendo Club in action. He found many students discussing Gershwin and the recording of his "Rhapsody in Blue." Mr. Burford and Mr. Watkins, co-sponsors, told Sherlock that this group had programs similar to this during the year on Bach, Beethoven, and Tchaikovsky. Other club meetings consisted of recital-type programs in which club members played instruments or sang selections.

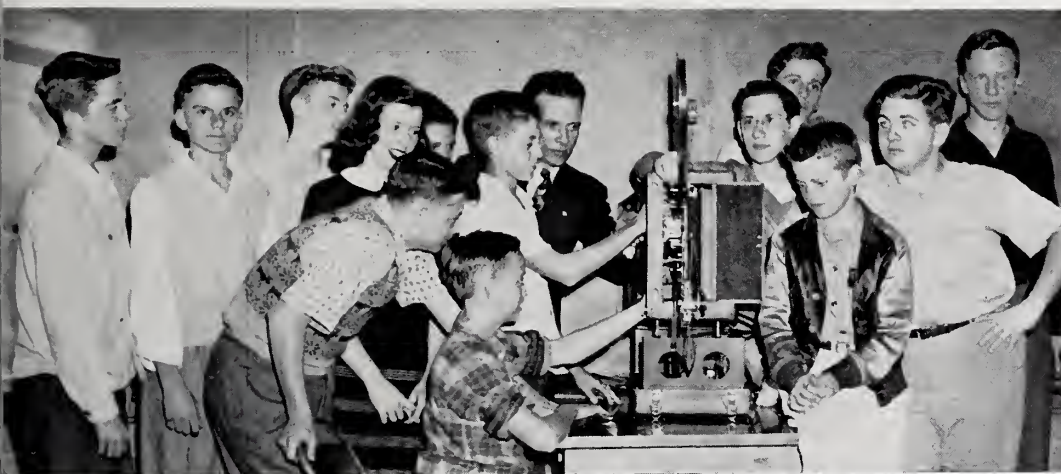

... Goes Clubbing ...

Stop, look and listen

While sleuthing around, Sherlock discovered many strange noises coming from Room 20. Upon further investigation, he found out that this is where many students nearly every day stop by, look at an educational film, and listen to some words of wisdom. After the film which Sherlock saw was over, he talked to the boys who stayed behind and found out that members of the Audio-Visual Club, under the guidance of Mr. Merle Wimmer, were responsible for operating the projection equipment and keeping it in running order.

Howe's gift to science

Sherlock the Great almost turned in his magnifying glass for a portable microscope after he saw all that the Science Club members observed through high powered lenses. Mr. William Smith and Mrs. Bette Davis supervised the club's projects, some of which were: growing plants without soil, studying the chemical behavior of compounds, and growing bacteria. The most important research was done by crossing fruit flies to study heredity traits. If any Howeite wishes to grow flies, Sherlock definitely recommends the Science Club for them.

Behind the footlights

Sherlock dropped in on one of the Footlight Revelers' meetings and picked up a few helpful hints on make-up and dramatics. He watched these future Barrymores and Bernhards (let them dream) working under the supervision of Mr. Darrell Gooch. All this weekly preparation blossomed forth in their spring production, "Stage Door." The cast was headed by Jo Justice as Terry, and Jim Denny who played Keith. With the able support of a good cast and the direction of Cecil B. DeGooch, prominent Howe director, the play was a huge success.

Can you top this?

Our great detective stumbled while trying his hand at balancing books, so he decided it was best to leave this to the Home Economics Club. The girls received some fine tips from Miss Lois Coy for the all-school posture contest which they sponsored. They kept busy by helping the Junior Red Cross Club with special Red Cross work and hospital projects. Two special parties rounded out the activities of the club for the past year. Members of the Home Economics Club also helped sell concessions at the basketball games and football games during the past year.

Answer to a Maiden's prayer

Our hero, Sherlock, who seemed to manage to turn up everywhere, had a bit of trouble keeping up with the busy Hi-Y boys. Doc and his boys attended many of the state and local Hi-Y conventions held during the year. On Valentine's Day they sponsored their 4th annual Hi-Y Sweetheart Dance where Mary Jordan, junior, reigned as Sweetheart. Other candidates were: Peggy Millen, Patty Sloo, Joan Dufour, and Elizabeth Schmidt. The club also elected from their midst the philosopher who represented the Spirit of the Tower at the annual Birthday Pagaent held in May.

Working their way up

According to the Hi-Y fellows, the Beta Hi-Y boys are just "working their way up." Sherlock found however, without a too thorough investigation, that these underclassmen kept just as busy as their older brothers. Being very sports-minded, they went in for basketball, hockey, and swimming in a big way during the past year. The members also attended state Hi-Y conventions with their club sponsor, "McGonical," alias Mr. Paul Klinge. These boys had money-making projects galore last year some of which were: checking at dances and taking care of concessions at football and basketball games.

Pardon, but your sheet is showing

Sherlock had been told that Latin was a dead language, but he observed that there were many very much alive persons interested in it. These people were the members of the Latin Club and their sponsors, Miss Narcie Pollitt and Miss Thelma Cooley. Wrapped in their togas (sheets to you) the members held a Roman trial, Saturnalia, and election.

Something has been added

Luncheon clubs, as well as after-school meetings, are rising in popularity among the Spanish students. Always present when there is any food around, Sherlock attended one of the luncheon meetings, and found himself completely baffled—there wasn't an English speaking person in the group. Miss Mary E. Thumma and Miss Hildegard Kuhar sponsored the two organizations.

And Meets Howe's Journalists . . .

Sherlock's bewilderment as to what went on behind the door marked "Tower" was cleared up when he tramped up the steps to be confronted with the buzz of the journalism world. As he entered this unknown, he heard cries of "Hurry up with that copy!", "Where is Tick-Tocks?", "What happened to the head on this story?" Miss Betty L. Williams, sponsor, soothed his nerves by saying that these students were trying to meet a Wednesday night deadline for the TOWER, the bi-weekly newspaper. Sherlock found that each staff member had a regular beat which he covered on Friday and Monday. After getting the news, the reporter writes it into a story. The story was checked by editors and faculty members. On Thursday evening all copy was sent to Clarence E. Crippin and Son, Inc. for printing. Every other Friday the student body received an issue of the TOWER. Miss Williams stated that a semester's instruction in journalism, English IVJ, was required of all prospective staff members. This course included the fundamentals of newspaper production and news writing.

After some investigation, Sherlock found that eight students from the TOWER staff were responsible for keeping the community informed about the activities at Howe. These students, comprising the News Bureau, told Sherlock that they sent news to their assigned papers at least once a week.

Sherlock saw future journalists at the meetings of the Cub Club. This Club was composed of representatives from freshman and sophomore English classes. The club members, most important duty was providing news for the Cubby Hole, the underclassmen's column in the TOWER.

Yearbook Staff Publishes

After gathering information on the TOWER staff, Sherlock wound his way up the circular steps to the now well-known top room which serves as the HILLTOPPER office. Every day since September 5, the day of his arrival, Sherlock had mounted these steps to report his findings to the staff, until now he was quite familiar with the long, strenuous climb.

Before Sherlock arrived at Howe last fall, the staff began the preliminary steps to year-book production which is a year-round job. Arrangements were made with Sherlock for him to stay at Howe for a full year to study the activities of the student body and faculty in order to determine the reasons for the young school's success. When this was settled, the staff turned its attention to the Moonlight Ball, an annual spring dance sponsored by the HILLTOPPER staff to pay for the covers made by the Kingskraft Cover Company. The make-up editors drew plans for the dummy, the book containing a rough idea of the finished yearbook. Complete plans for the fall subscription campaign were compiled by the Business Managers and Mrs. Ruth Marie Griggs, former sponsor.

In September, the staff came back "raring to go." First, there was the excitement of meeting Sherlock, who became each member's dearest friend and consultant. He arrived precisely on time and set right to work. As a guest of the staff, he attended the annual Brown and Gold dance. Throughout the remainder of the year he spent at least a day in each class, attended basketball and football games, track meets, club meetings, the senior play, the operetta, and various other programs. Sherlock also aided Joe and Elliott in carrying out the subscription campaign, during which 1,400 HILLTOPPERS were ordered.

At this same time, Barbara, Marjorie, Janie, Betty, and Jean were busy preparing picture schedules. Contracts had already been made with Ramos-Porter Studios to take informals and senior portraits; Russell E. Benson to take division pages and class room scenes; and Bass Studios for Orchestra and Choir pictures and the snow scene. When the pictures were taken, the Activities, Club, and Homeroom Editors were busy typing identification, figuring copy areas and proportions. After the prints came back from the photographers, Mary Ann, Bob, Bill, and Adelle were knee deep in glossies, rubber cement, and mounting boards. In order to meet the engraver's deadlines, all staff members, including Sherlock, turned into make-up editors. Meanwhile Joanie was busy getting the senior portraits taken, keeping records, and checking and mounting the senior section. Then copy deadlines came along. With the aid of Sherlock's complete notations and his personal supervision, the copy was written and re-written, cut off, stretched out, and finally, after much laborious correcting, it was finished. At last all photos were sent to the Indianapolis Engraving Company, and when the engravings were finished, they and the copy were sent to Clarence E. Crippin and Son for the printing of the book.

In January Mrs. Griggs left Howe after having helped organize and sponsor four of the five previous HILLTOPPERS. Mrs. Mary Diaz then came to the staff as the new sponsor during the spring semester. Hard work on the part of these two sponsors, the brilliant Sherlock, and the fourteen staff members, made the 1946 HILLTOPPER what it is today.

On June 7, Sherlock left Howe, after having spent a "successful year in a successful school." Before leaving Indianapolis, Sherlock disclosed his findings to the press.

Detective Discloses Deductions

Indianapolis, Ind., June 7, 1946 (HSA). The publication of the 1946 HILLTOPPER ends a year of work for Sherlock the Great, famed detective, who arrived in Indianapolis last fall to study the reasons behind the phenomenal growth of Thomas Carr Howe High School.

Mr. Sherlock stated in a final interview today with members of the HILLTOPPER staff, who have helped him with his investigations and who published his findings in their yearbook, "My job here has proven interesting and profitable as well as enjoyable."

As to the solution of the "Mystery of the Four Clues" or the secret of Howe's success, Mr. Sherlock stated: "Howe High School doesn't have a special formula for success. I found the elements I expected—a pleasant student body, hard-working instructors, plenty of play mixed with the work, and a wonderful school spirit. That's what it takes for any high school to be successful."
